WILL GO TO SUPREME COURT

North Carolina Executive Declares the South Is Adding to the Wealth of the Country at the Rate of $7,300,000 a Day-People Not Interested in Politics, He Declares.

"I have every confidence that the contentions of the State of North Carolina will be upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Gov. R. B. Glenn, of North Carolina. whose railroad fight in the Tar Heel State attracted national attention, gave utterance to the above expression last night. The governor is on his way to Atlantic City for a few days rest. The victory won by him in the preliminary stages of the North Carolina rate controversy causes the governor to feel that the highest court in the land will sustain

The present hearing, under Judge Montgomery, the governor expects to continue for at least six weeks. By the first of the year, however, he hopes the case will be before the Supreme Court, where, if advanced in accordance with the motion which will then be made, a decision may be rendered before the end of the term.

"We-feel," said Gov Glenn, "that the two and one-quarter cents' rate will give the railroad 8 or 1 Oper cent. The legislature based the rate upon the sworn report the railroad 8 or 10 per cent. The legislature at our request, and the unfortunate part of it, for the railroad, is that they now declare this sworn report is lnac

Should Have Compromised.

"The railroad could have compromised with the legislature on a 216-cent rate, but instead of doing this they took a step in the opposite direction and tried to get the rate increased one-quarter of a cent. The action of the railroad in opposing the putting into effect of the rate naturally angered the people throughout the State This sentiment is even manifested in the temper of juries sitting in damage cases In several instances recently verdicts have been brought in giving plaintiffs amounts in excess of what was formerly allowed. The railroad's deflance of the act of the legislature was undoubtedly a blunder.

"In North Carolina," continued the governor, "we have a dearth of politics and a veritable cornucopia of business. The South is adding to the wealth of the country at the rate of $7,300,000 a day. Naturally, therefore, there are things other than politics to engross our attention. We hear a great deal about Bryan and Folk as Democratic Presidential nominees, and a little about Chanler. It is ten months before the convention, and somewhat idle to speculate upon the nomi-nee at this time. What is even more true may be said of the Presidential elec tion next year. The Democratic situation is by no means hopeless.

Time for a Change.

In addition, it is only a matter of time before the people of the country demand a change and it is as ICE CONCERNS FACE TRIAL ANTISEPTIC GIVEN TO BABY liable to come next year as five years

"As for a Southern candidate for the doubt the advisability of it," and the governor added, in a semi-jocular vein "Perhaps we may win an election one of these days with a Southern man the candidate for Vice President. The Pres- Letters of Trust President Just Un- Administered Wrong Tablets - Inident might die and he would succeed to the office. The administration he would give the people would forever set at rest all prejudice, and bring about an era of good feeling not even paralleled by that under Polk, himself a Southerner."

CAPT. JOHN SMITH. Statue Unveiled and Dedicated with Elaborate Ceremonies Yesterday

The one personality which stands out | the early history of the United States. The one personality which stands out above all others in the colonial settlement of 300 years ago, which is being celebrated by the Jamestown Exposition this year, is Capt. John Smith.

So little is really known of him that he is almost a mythological character, and yet history has so indelibly associated to the governor of Virginia and the great ceremony on Jamestown Island yes to the improvement of the Potomac channel. The engineers have recommended that the channel, which is now 300 feet wide and 24 feet deep, be widened to 400 feet, with a depth of 24 feet.
